LONDON, June 1.—Seldem, if ever, save so many Americans been present at the Derby ne when Lord Rosebery's Sir Visto won the blue ribbon of the turf on Wednesday last. As already cabled, it was estimated that there were 10,000 trans-Atlantic visitors on Epsom Downs and they nearly all went there in style-on coaches and had seats on the grand stand and in the boxes which cost a small fortune.

They became generally impressed with the fact that race-going is far more ex-The result of the Derby seemed to surprise Lord Rosebery as much any one. It is considered not at all unlikely that Lord Rosebery's second perby may have a political effect, simulate the Premier on his double victory and it may have a greatly beneficial ef fect upon his waning popularity. "He is a lucky fellow and I stand by him," was the remark seard on many sides at Epsom when the victory of Bir Visto became known.

De Castellane Will Be a Turfman It is announced here that Count De Anna Gould, of New York, intends to devote part of his wife's fortune to grand racing stable. He has already bought several horses which will soon be run in the races at Auteuil, France. Mr. George L. Watson, the designer of Thistle, Britannia, the Valkyrie, and other vachts, in an interview during the week, said he regarded the fact Defender is a keel boat as a moral victory for the British design. He added that it was a pity, in point of inter-national interest, that the builders of the Americal Cup defender had not stuck to the centreboard.

It appeared that after the last race between Valkyrie III. and Vigilant, off Sandy Hook, in 1893, when Mr. Watson was asked for his opinion of the centreboard, he put it in writing in an envelope and asked that the envelope remai unopened until the next international Mr. Watson is said to have added in the interview: "I then stated that the next cup-de fender would be a keel boat."

(From the Boston Traveler.)

There is said to be a law in Massachusetts making it an offense to give away an object or thing as an inducement to purchase other things; for exment to purchase other things; for example, to give away a picture with every certain amount of other things purchased. There was once a law which made it an offense for a man to kiss his wife on Sunday, but was strangely silent about kissing some other man's wife. Many a man still living can remember when it was not permissable to open the theatres in Boston on Saturday evenings, and there was a law to punish any dissipated individual found smoking on the street. Some of these fantastic old legal freaks have been done away with, but there are some communities which like some individuals, require quite an unconscionable time to get wide awake.
